9:30 - 9:45	The Digital Decade INTERPRETED hall Ballroom I+II In January 2023, the European decision establishing the digital policy agenda "Road to the Digital Decade" entered into force. According to it, the member states have an obligation to set national policies, measures and activities that will contribute to the achievement of the common goals of the European Union by 2030. Slovakia also has the obligation to prepare a national plan with specific measures to achieve digital goals in four main EU topics: digital skilled population and highly skilled digital professionals; secure, efficient and sustainable digital infrastructures, digital transformation of businesses and digitization of public services. From the point of view of the binding nature of the goals, this is an unprecedented step by the EU in the digital field, which will require significant efforts from Slovakia. Moderator: Marta Jančkárová 1on1: Anton Jelenčiak, Ministry of investments, regional development and informatization of the Slovak republic

What has changed in the last three years since the new government took office after 2020? Are we able to evaluate our goals and evaluate the effectiveness of public policies in the area of digitization? Was it possible to fulfill the obligations set at the beginning of this period? Has the competitive environment increased and the structure of contracts in state IT changed? And what will digitization look like financed by the Slovakia Program and the Recovery Plan? Moderator: Marta Jančkárová Countdown of the Successes and Failures of Digitization: Ľubor Illek, Slovensko.Digital Competitive Environment in the State IT: Emil Fitoš, ITAS Digitization in the new era: Martin Bezek, Ministry of investments, regional development and informatization of the Slovak republic

Robotization of Public Administration INTERPRETED hall Ballroom I+II

How does artificial intelligence enter the functioning of the public sector? Can it simplify communication between the citizen and the office? Can she relieve the officials from a lot of stereotypical work? Or are we facing a time in which artificial intelligence will completely replace officials?

Central Economic System - Why not to be Afraid of it INTERPRETED hall Ballroom I+II

The discussion brings information about fundamental changes brought about by the Central Economic System (CES). Up to 151 organizations were integrated into the system in record time. CES represents a robust system that interconnects 30 application modules, such as HR, financial accounting and property management. The entire implementation, including operation, is managed and coordinated from the level of the Ministry of Finance of the Slovak Republic, and participating organizations provide cooperation in the migration and control of their data. The system effectively saves costs for individual organizations, relieves them of the lengthy process of public procurement, negotiations with suppliers and ordering training for new employees. One system for all employees ensures easier substitutability and shortens the adaptation time when employees move from office to office, which is typical for public administration. The most significant advantages that CES brings are the electronification and optimization of economic processes and the fact that the management of public finances is finally getting a solid foundation.

INTERPRETED hall Ballroom I In cooperation with Slovensko.Digital The next election cycle is coming to an end and it is time to take stock, show off, learn from mistakes, and some may even be preparing to pass on their experiences. In this panel, we will look at the challenges of the past period, what has been achieved and what awaits us in the near future in the informatization of public administration before and after the elections.	How to Procure Digitalization Effectively? hall Ballroom II In cooperation with ITAS More tenders were completed in 2022 than ever before. However, the total number of IT firms that won has decreased. This suggests that public tenders or the state itself as a customer cease to be attractive for companies. The state announces the procurement of IT capacities in the form of dynamic purchasing systems, and it seems that some public authorities are flirting with the idea of procuring software solutions in this way as well. Another phenomenon is the so-called "kamikaze" companies competing with a price	How to raise private capital for innovations in healthcare? hall Connections In cooperation with HealthHub.sk 17:15 – 18:05 Moderator: Michal Kovačič DISKUSIA Miroslav Beblavý, ESPRI Michal Jablonka, Limerock Sandra Karabelli, Perry Talents Michal Matúš, Impact Nation Institute
